New York, Tel Aviv August 2009- Global Sun Partners, also known as Arava Power (The “Company”), an Israeli based company located in Southern Israel, recently closed on a Series A round of financing comprised of partnership units. “We, as well as our investors, are very pleased to have participated in the first round of financing for this amazing alternative energy company. It is the 3rd investment we have made in the solar industry and follows our goal of seeking out innovative alternative energy investments worldwide. We hope one day that the Company will supply as much as 2% of Israel’s electrical needs. I want to specifically acknowledge Yosi Abramowitz, the Founder of Arava Power, for his vision and enthusiasm and my partner Gil Raker for his voluminous efforts on our behalf. We are very excited about our foray back into the Israel Venture Capital market where some of the world’s greatest technologies originate”, stated Mark I Lev, Chairman and CEO of Wellfleet Partners.

Global Sun Partners, is an Israel based company specializing in the deployment of solar energy panels in the Negev desert in Southern Israel in an area also know as the Arava Valley. The Company has developed technology for utilizing solar panels that maximize the available abundance of sun light in an area that receives sun light during nine (9) months out of the year for the production of solar energy and electricity. Arava is well position to take advantage of recently enacted “regulations” and “feed-in-tariffs” to build solar energy plants on a large scale in Southern Israel. The Company plans on signing long term land lease deals for plots of land from local Kibbutzim and Moshavim owners in the Negev desert, which together would total over 100 land spots. Arava will purchase strategic land in the Arava valley that is ideally positioned to attract sunlight at specific degrees that is ideal for power generation. The abundance of open space, arid land, and the desert environment that the Negev affords APC, will provide infinite space for placement of solar energy fields, and alleviating the burden on the nation’s power grid. Arava anticipates that the government will announce the tariff as planned in September/October of 2009 and the first field will be deployed by Q1 2010. The deployments are forecasted to be on agriculturally zoned lands, and will be the mid-size 5MW projects. The Company has entered into a strategic partnership with a world known, prominent German solar installation company as its Partner which will also provide project financing. This round represents the Series A/”Friend and Family” round of financing with a subsequent round to follow in late 2009, early 2010.
